New Delhi : India's leading infrastructure development company SPML Infra Ltd has won a Rs 325 crore order for a water distribution network in Rajasthan.

The company said it has bagged the Rs 324.91 crore order from the Public Health Engineering Department (PHED), Ajmer for the Nagaur lift project.

The scope of work of the project involves construction of cluster water distribution network, pump houses, clear water reservoirs and allied works to be completed in three years.

SPML will also be responsible for operations and maintenance for 10 years post the commissioning of the project.

Said SPML Infra Executive Director Rishabh Sethi, "Water and wastewater management are our core competencies and we intend to grow at a rapid pace in this segment in next few years. We have been developing infrastructure for drinking water supply, wastewater treatment and sewerage management in different states of India and excited to receive this order from Rajasthan".

"It is a testimony of our capabilities in executing water and waste management projects and the trust, client places in us. With proven domain expertise of over three decades, we are proud to be a preferred partner for utilities across the country", he added.
