

India's SPML Infra Wins Dun and Bradstreet Infra Award

6 Nov 2014 – 10:48 by Local Press Report

NEW DELHI

SPML Infra has won the coveted Dun & Bradstreet (D&B) Infra Awards 2014, for its project Pokhran Water Supply which was selected as the best project under the category namely Project Awards for Water Supply & Sanitation. The award ceremony was held in Mumbai on 30th October, 2014.

The award was presented to SPML for executing an important water supply project in Rajasthan to provide drinking water to more than 1.2 million people of 580 villages and 3 towns, and also to cater bulk water demands of Defence forces and Industries in Pokhran, India's nuclear test site.

SPML has designed and constructed infrastructure to meet drinking water demands projected up to year 2023, except for raw water carrier between project outlet and water treatment plant, pump house, civil structure and raw water reservoirs as per projected demands till year 2038. Raw water is proposed to be drawn from Indira Gandhi Munak Canal (IGMC) through project outlet. Besides necessary arrangement for its treatment, storage capacity of raw water is also constructed to meet drinking water demand in course of 30 days of canal closure in continuous stretch every year.

Project consist of 3 Water Treatment Plants of 125.3 MLD combined capacity, 3 Clear Water Reservoirs of 10,850 KL capacity, 2 Raw Water Reservoirs of 300 Million Litres, 16 Pumping Stations, 397 Kilometers Water Pipeline, 2 Master Control Centre, Grid sub-stations, SCADA system and allied civil works with Operation & Maintenance for 10 years after commissioning.

